CHARGES PRESIDENT WILSON WITH INJECTING POLITICS INTO DEBATE

Senator Weeks, Republican, Takes Up War Efficiency Controversy — Makes Vigorous Adverse Criticism.

Washington, Feb. 15.—President Wilson was charged with deliberately injecting politics into the controversy over war efficiency, by Senator Weeks, a republican member of the military committee, in a speech today, vigorously criticizing the war department and other branches of the government.

Supporting the military committee's war cabinet and munitions director bill as a constructive, nonpartisan effort to aid and not embarrass President Wilson in unifying America's war force, Senator Weeks detailed delays and difficulties of the government's military preparations. He declared that lack of a central body to make and direct all the government's war plans is largely responsible for present and past troubles. In his charge against President Wilson, the senator said:

"Not a question indicating partisanship was raised until the president deliberately injected politics into the situation by an attack upon the chairman of the committee, Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, democrat, and the committee itself, and by calling to the White House many democratic party leaders, not for consultation purposes, but to insist that a discussion of this question on the floor of the senate be prevented, if possible. Have we come to such a pass that the action of the most important committee in congress at this time is to be forbidden by the president?"

Referring to Secretary Baker, Senator Weeks said, after praising many army achievements:

"Neither do I wish to unjustly or unreservedly criticize the head of the war department. He has had to deal with a multitude of questions, the disposal of many of which meet my approval. It would require too much time to enumerate. The secretary has done that effectively in his speech made to the committee, Jan. 23."

Accuses Pacifism.

Although praising efforts of the war department toward reorganization, Senator Weeks said Edward R. Stettinius, the civilian surveyor of purchases, is in an "impossible position" and that the administration is "throwing away an opportunity to make an effective organization" by rejecting the plan for a munitions director.

This condition has, to some degree, permeated the department—on the basis that we are 2,000 miles away from the front, instead of hastening preparation with all the vigor we would exercise if our borders were the battle front.

"One of the notable features of the present situation," Senator Weeks contended, "the virulence used in attacking those who favor the committee's plan of centralization. They are referred to as plotters, mischief-makers, and even as servants of the enemy."

Asserting that it is "physically impossible" for the president to individually co-ordinate and direct all of the government's functions, Senator Weeks added:

Crozier Responsible.
"Can it be possible the president will be embarrassed by such a cabinet? It would seem as if he would be embarrassed to a greater extent by a perpetuation of the disjointed system which now exists."

Furnishing of food to the army, Senator Weeks said, has been a "tremendous success" due to Gen. Crozier, chief of ordnance, saying he had often asked congress for more ordnance appropriations, but that sentiment in the country prevented appropriations. Gen. Crozier, he declared, was partly responsible for deficiencies in machine guns and light ordnance.

Reliance upon France for ordnance and other materials, he said, was "very doubtful wisdom," and the powder situation was described as acute, with half of American production under contract to the allies and our total capacity not half of our needs.

Aviation work, the senator conceded, had been carried out intelligently and systematically.

In "Impossible Situation."

"While the actual number of machines constructed," he said, "does not compare favorably with the impression given the public, it is represented that construction would be very rapid."

Stettinius, the civilian surveyor of purchases, is in an "impossible position" and that the administration is "throwing away an opportunity to make an effective organization" by rejecting the plan for a munitions director.

OVER HALF SHIPYARD WORKERS NOW SECURED

Enrollment Campaign for Men Needed to Build Nation's Ships Meets Success.

Washington, Feb. 15.—More than half of the great number of shipyard workers needed to carry out the country's merchant marine program have been secured in the first half of the first week of the nation-wide enrollment campaign by the United States public service reserve. This is shown by incomplete returns to Wm. E. Hall, director of the reserve. The national drive will be continued for another week, however, and thereafter in every state whose quota is not filled at the end of the campaign. Mr. Hall pointed out today that to obtain suitable men is more important than speed in attaining the quota. He emphasized the fact that men are not expected to leave their present jobs until they are called upon by the labor department for shipbuilding service.

No reports of any extensive damage have been received from along the course of either stream.

DICUSSES HIS WIFE'S TROUBLES

Rev. New Says His Wife Suffered Five Years.

She Looks Like a Different Woman Now.

Gained Fifteen Pounds on Tanlac and Never Complains Any More, He Says.

"My wife gained fifteen pounds taking Tanlac and she looks like a different woman now," said Rev. James H. New, a well-known Baptist minister, living on route 1, Lithonia, Ga.

"Five or six years ago she began suffering with indigestion and soon got so she could scarcely eat a thing. The little she forced herself to eat caused gas to form in her stomach and gave her hours of agony from cramps. She had terrible headaches constantly and was so nervous at times she couldn't sleep. About a year ago her back gave out and she had to quit trying to do her work about the house."

"One of her friends recommended Tanlac and before she had finished the first bottle she had made a big improvement. Her food agrees with her now and never gives her any trouble, the headaches and nervousness have disappeared, she sleeps fine, enjoys her meals and never complains of trouble at all any more. She does all her own housework now and is in better shape than she has been in a long time."

Tanlac is sold in Chattanooga exclusively by the Live and Let Live Drug Co.—(Adv.)

That will cleanse the stomach, move the bowels and soon restore the system to a healthy condition. By the following morning you can eat sparingly of dry crust of bread, vegetables and cereals, but should eat no meat until the next day. Mrs. Wm. J.
